August 2017 Provincial Violations Map

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

A total of 149 human rights violations were recorded in August down from the 223 figure recorded in July. Harassment and intimidation cases decreased in August to 80 violations, followed by theft and/or looting which recorded 22, and assault with 15. Mashonaland Central had the highest recorded violations in August with 41, followed by Harare with 36 and Mashonaland East with 24. While the figures are lower than the previous month, a closer look at the nature of cases makes for disturbing reading. The violations were mainly politically motivated and peaked towards or during political events. This still points towards a festering culture of political intolerance that potentially spells trouble in 2018 elections. A lingering culture of fear cultivated by impunity as a result of reluctance by responsible authorities to act on political violence has resulted in more compliance from the victims and less resistance or the will to report the cases.

A significant number of violations were perpetrated in defense of the First Family or to further their political interest. Those who resist or criticize the first family have been targets of Zanu PF activists.

ZPP has noted a sharp increase in political conflict but a contradicting drop in the number violations and number of victims for the month of August. The majority of victims remained unknown because they were not prepared to risk retribution for exposing the abuses. Five hundred and seven out of 745 of the victims were male while 238 were female. Four hundred and eighty six of the 546 perpetrators were male. Amongst the perpetrators this month were soldiers who were

ABOUT ZPP

The organisation was founded in 2000 by church-based and human rights organisations. The current members of ZPP are Evangelical Fellowship of Zimbabwe (EFZ), Zimbabwe Council of Churches (ZCC), Catholic Commission for Justice and Peace in Zimbabwe (CCJPZ), Counselling Services Unit (CSU), Habakkuk Trust, Zimbabwe Human Rights Association (ZimRights), Civic Education Network Trust (CIVNET), Zimbabwe Lawyers for Human Rights (ZLHR) and Women's Coalition of Zimbabwe (WCoZ).

ZPP was established with the objective of monitoring, documenting and building peace and promoting the peaceful resolution of disputes and conflicts. The peace project seeks to foster dialogue and political tolerance through non-partisan peace monitoring activities, mainly through monitors who document the violations of rights in the provinces.

The monitors, who at full complement stand at 420, constitute the core pool of volunteers, supported by three Regional Coordinators. The Regional Coordinators relate with the national office headed by the National Director and programme officers in various units.

accused of assaulting police officers in the Central Business District of Harare.

Most of the violations recorded were towards the Heroes Day Holiday. It has become a trend that violations peak during key events that are meant to be national which end up political and associated with the Zanu PF party. It was encouraging to note that in the month under review the two main political leaders, President Robert Mugabe and Morgan Tsvangirai spoke out against violence perpetrated by their supporters. Tsvangirai took further action by suspending those implicated. Although President Mugabe condemned violence perpetrated by a group associated with his party he also directed that the perpetrators be attacked violently before being handed to the police. Violence of any form should be condemned regardless of who perpetrates it. This has not yielded the desired results as those he chided have been implicated in more violence in the party. President Mugabe further worsened issues by declaring that those who killed white farmers would not face prosecution. This is likely to increase impunity among his supporters.

The majority perpetrators of human rights violations in August are associated with Zanu PF in one way or the other (81,2% of the reported cases). The opposition MDC-T was responsible for 5,9% of the cases. Security agents that include the police, Zimbabwe National Army (ZNA) and Central Intelligence Organization (CIO) were responsible for a combined 11,4%. War veterans have not featured prominently as perpetrators in the last few months. This may be due to the falling out of the war veterans body with the ruling Zanu PF party.

Out of the 8 intra-party cases of violence recorded in August, 7 were recorded in the ruling Zanu PF party while only one case was recorded in the opposition MDC-T. This may be due to the factional succession battles playing out in the ruling party, which have degenerated into open conflict heightened during this month by accusations of 'poisoning' Vice President Emmerson Mnangagwa at a youth interface rally in Gwanda. It is possible there might have been more than one case of conflict within the MDC-T as for most of the other cases there have been hushed voices and could manifest to haunt the party in the future.

Freedom of expression came under attack as political activists were arrested for expressing their opinions on social media or harassed for donning regalia that was seen as poking fun at the 'first family'. Section (61) of the constitution says every person has the right to freedom of expression which includes freedom of artistic expression and scientific research, creativity. The arrest of war veteran Victor Matemadanda, which he believes was triggered by a T-shirt ridiculed First Lady Grace Mugabe is an affront to freedom of expression. Another Zanu PF supporter Energy Mutodi was also picked up by police for expressing his opinion on Facebook. He was subsequently beaten up by known Zanu PF activists while on bail.

Intra-party violence was also recorded in the main opposition Movement for Democratic Change (MDC-T) when Vice President Thokozani Khupe and other party stalwarts in Bulawayo had their meeting disrupted by party youths who were unhappy with her decision to stay away from the MDC Alliance signing ceremony. Violence erupted and Khupe had to seek medical attention. Some high ranking party official celebrated the political intolerance and attack on Khupe and party president Morgan Tsvangirai subsequently suspended party members who were implicated.

Heroes Day Commemorations were not a cause for celebration for many people as they found themselves being ordered to bankroll the festivities against their will. The commemorations which are supposed to be national events have been usurped by ruling party activists who take the opportunity to mobilise for their party and in the process intimidated and harassed unwilling citizens. Government through the Ministry of Home Affairs said they do not have a policy of fundraising for national events from citizens. However, there were reports that in schools and other government departments civil servants were ordered to contribute as memos went round asking civil servants to contribute for the celebrations. Factional ruptures also manifested themselves at the National Heroes Acre when Vice President Phelekezela Mphoko was heckled by alleged Lacoste faction supporters who did not want the Vice President to officiate at Shuvai Mahofa's funeral. Tempers flared after Mahofa was said to have been poisoned at the party national conference in Victoria Falls in 2015. Accusations and counter accusations disrupted the funeral wake of the late Mahofa believed to be an ally of Vice President Mnangagwa. The ZPP is apprehensive this state of affairs does not bode well for the 2018 in the horizon unless resolved.

There was conflict between police and soldiers in Harare on 1 August. Police released a press statement saying the security forces enjoy good relations and the matter would be investigated. President Mugabe also expressed regret over the issue on Heroes Day. A number of reasons have been put forward for the clash. Some believe traffic police had put a spike on a vehicle belonging to a soldier. Police and soldiers have been known to run transport businesses in the CBD, which the police commissioner has admitted to in the past. Sometimes they fight for lucrative pick up points and touts told ZPP that they pay protection fees to some members of the security forces and this might have been the reason for the violence that ensued.

On August 30 the world commemorated the UN International Day of the victims of enforced disappearances. In Zimbabwe Paul Chizuze and Itai Dzamara since February 2012 and March 2015 are still unaccounted for and it seems the government is not moved by this state of affairs. The Zimbabwean government has still not ratified the International Convention of all Persons against Enforced Disappearances and with the 2018 elections on the horizon and the many conflicts within and across political parties there is a risk more citizens could meet this fate.

DATA GATHERING

Information contained herein is based on reports from ZPP long-term community based human rights monitors, who observe and record cases of human rights violations in the constituencies they reside. ZPP deploys a total of 420 community-based primary peace monitors (two per each of the 210 electoral constituencies of Zimbabwe). The monitors compile reports that are handed over to ZPP Coordinators who man the different ZPP regional offices in the ten administrative provinces of Zimbabwe. Upon receipt and verification of the reports from the monitors, the Coordinators compile provincial monthly monitoring reports, which are then consolidated at the national office into the ZPP Monthly Monitoring Report. This report contains some of the violations recorded by ZPP, the organisation has a data base with the rest of the injustices and gladly shares it with interested stakeholders.

There was a violent clash between traffic police and members of the Zimbabwe National Army (ZNA) in Harare Central Business District on 1 August. It is alleged that a traffic police officer threw spikes at a vehicle carrying soldiers. Members of the army are alleged to have retaliated by physically assaulting police officers. During the attacks Zimbabwe Republic Police (ZRP) officers fled and sought refuge in nearby shops while the military pursued others on foot until they reached Harare Central police station. The violence was reported to have affected street vendors as some had their carts overturned during the clashes. It is alleged that a police officer sustained serious injuries. While this is the reason at the surface there are other undertones like the issue of protection fees in some designated areas in Harare.

It is alleged that Zanu PF intra-party conflicts resulted in violent skirmishes at the National Heroes Acre during the burial of the late Masvingo Provincial Affairs Minister, Shuvai Mahofa on 20 August. A suspected Vice President Mnangagwa aligned faction Lacoste is alleged to have heckled Vice President Phelekezela Mphoko's 12 minute address resulting in a security agent assaulting one of the mourners.

On 16 August Zimbabwe National Liberation War Veterans Association (ZNLWVA) secretary general Victor Matemadanda was forced to hand himself over to Harare police following allegations against him including, undermining the authority of the President and causing disaffection within the army and police force. Matemadanda had convened a press conference in response to statements made by the First Lady that President Mugabe had powers to appoint a successor. In rebuttal Matemadanda expressed himself saying Zimbabwe does not belong to a family or clan hence succession issues should be debated using the right channels as enshrined in the ruling party constitution. Matemadanda was released on $200 bail and advised to appear again in court on September 1.

On 24 August, it was reported that freelance journalist Andriison Manyere was assaulted by a suspected state agent Ephraim Chizola at Harare Show grounds, during the Zimbabwe Agricultural show. According to reports Manyere took a picture of Chizola's car, which had no registration plates but emblazoned with a picture of President Mugabe. Chizola assaulted Manyere for his actions and made efforts to drag him into his car but the victim resisted. Chizola then reported the case to showground police claiming Manyere assaulted him and damaged his phone. Manyere was detained for two days and was released on free bail as the court postponed his trial to 8 September.

It is alleged that on 24 August Zanu PF youths assaulted a Highfield resident when he resisted eviction in Geneva at block 19 ward 26. A ruling party activist Shamiso Ndoro reported her landlord Steven Kizomba*to Zanu PF on allegations of abusive behavior towards her family. Ndoro also made several allegations against Kizomba. She claimed he insults her, everyone and those in authority including the President. She also said he was among those who did not vote for Zanu PF during elections. Eight Zanu PF youths led by Dominic Nyanga arrived Kizomba's premises to evict him. They threw Kizomba's possessions outside the house resulting in damage to property. Violence ensued when Bwanali resisted eviction resulting in him sustaining a swollen eye. Kizomba's household property including a refrigerator, wardrobe and speakers were damaged. A male resident who spoke of condition of anonymity reported that Highfield MP Psychology Maziwisa was involved in the dispute because he told many ruling party supporters that most structures in the ward belonged to Zanu PF. Several attempts to get a comment from Maziwisa were unsuccessful.

It is alleged that on 25 August Zanu PF activist Energy Mutodi was assaulted at a city hotel by Munyaradzi Shoko, Jeppy Jaboon and Charles Mungoshi Jnr who are members of a group called CoZWA (Children of Zimbabwe War Veterans Association). Reports claim that the assailants saw Mutodi drinking at the hotel and tried to entice him to respond to a conversation about the First Lady. When Mutodi ignored the assailants he was assaulted. He left the hotel in a torn black suit following the assault. In a telephone interview ZNLWVA secretary general Victor Matemadanda said that their children do not participate in violent activities and speculated that those involved in Mutodi's assault were maybe G40 rivals linked to Local Government Minister Saviour Kasukuwere.

The case was reported to Borrowdale police (RRB3210042)

On 25 August, Zanu PF youths allegedly convened a meeting in Mbare ward 4 where they planned to reinstate terror bases ahead of the 2018 elections. He said the youths should identify suitable locations for the torture bases. He was quoted saying these bases will also serve as ruling party venues to conduct meetings and devise election campaign strategies.

On 27 August Zanu PF activists were involved in a violent fist fight when they failed to reach consensus over who would control bus rank operations in Mbare ward 3. It is alleged that a group of rank marshals led by Oliver Ollembe was confronted by another group led by Leo Paradza resulting in violent skirmishes. Paradza’s group argued that Ollembe’s group was denying them an opportunity to control the rank according to an agreement made, that they will rotate control of the rank every two weeks. The conflict affected nearby vendors who were forced to halt their operations since stones were thrown all over the area. Commuter omnibus drivers drove off for fear of damage to their vehicles. A resident who asked to have her identity protected reported that all ranks in Mbare are controlled by ruling party youths who collect money for party activities and for personal use.

In Mbare ward 3 and 4, proprietors were forced to close down their businesses and attend the Zanu PF solidarity rally on 30 August. About 40 Zanu PF youths led by Changara were patrolling Mbare assaulting street vendors forcing them to attend the rally. Many shops were closed from Mbare Msika, Mupedzanhamo flea market and Matapi areas. The rally was organized to demonstrate solidarity with First Lady Grace Mugabe after she had been condemned for violently assaulting a young women Gabriella Engels whom she found in the company of her sons at a hotel in South Africa. Among the many victims who were forced to attend the rally were Chipo Chikwengo*, Cathrine Muskwe * and Simon Chirombe*.
